

SECURITY EDICT PROMPTS DRIVE ON COURT BILL

Generates New Demands
For Withdrawal of
F. D. R. Measure

MANY IN CAPITAL
SEE COMPROMISE

Believe Other Legislation
May Be Given Right of Way

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 25.—The administration's victorious record at this time of the supreme court, climaxed by the social security decisions, generated new demands by opponents today for withdrawal of the Roosevelt judiciary reorganization bill.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.), a leader of the measure's foes, said the validation of unemployment insurance and old age pensions "knocked the last prop from under the court proposal."

See Little Effect
Speaker Bankhead (D-Ala.) and Senator Robinson (D-Ark.), the majority leaders, contended on the other hand that the security rulings would have little effect on the court dispute.

Nevertheless many in the capital forecast an eventual compromise, although Mr. Roosevelt has given no indication he would yield.

Some administration supporters, pointing to the score of 12 victories and no defeats in this term of court, said the President's objectives were safe for the time at least.

An emergency no longer existed, they added, contending congress now could devote its energies to other major legislation.

These four possibilities received the most discussion:

That wage and hour, farm government reorganization and national planning legislation would get precedence over the court bill.

That the bill itself would give way to a constitutional amendment to compel retirement of justices at 70 or 75.

That a compromise authorizing the President to increase the supreme court by two justices—or some similar proposal—would force the front.

The President would stand by his request for power to enlarge the court unless justices over 70½ retire.

Both Sides Study Decisions
Followers on both sides studied the security decisions to bolster their arguments. All agreed that in the Wagner Act and social security cases especially, the court's term had adopted a constitutional viewpoint more in line with Roosevelt philosophy of strong national powers to deal with national problems.

The question, as expressed by advocates of court revision, was whether the court can be expected to continue along that line on other administration legislation.

Some said they would prefer to take no chances. Others would let the judiciary revision proposal "lie fallow" until future decisions might run counter to what the administration contends is the proper conception of federal authority.

Pleads Not Guilty To Manslaughter

EAST LIVERPOOL, May 25.—Eugene Beaver, 19, WPA worker, was freed on $1,500 bond today after pleading innocent to manslaughter charge in the automobile crash death of William Stark, Jr., 43, of Wellsville, a salesman.

Beaver, who, police said, admitted he was the driver of an unlicensed automobile which crashed into Stark's car, was charged with manslaughter upon recommendation of Coroner Arnold W. Devon.

Court attaches at Lisbon today announced that a manslaughter charge against Stark, resulting from a previous traffic mishap, had been nulled by the prosecutor April 21.

Pilot Milner Cool In Plane Emergency

Steady nerves, a cool head and clear thinking on the part of Pilot John D. Milner, a nephew of Mr. Frank Floding, Norfolk, Ellsworth ave., and who is well known in Salem, was probably responsible for the saving of his own life and that of a passenger when his airplane caught fire at Phoenix, Ariz., a week ago Monday.

Milner, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Milner of Wilcox, Ariz., was flying to Phoenix from Tucson with William Woodin, Jr., son of the late secretary of the United States treasury. Milner detected the odor of smoke as he neared the Phoenix airport, cut the ignition switch and quickly side-slipped to a safe landing.

Shortly after Milner and Woodin leaped out, the plane burst into flames and exploded. A short circuit in battery wiring was believed cause of the fire.

Plans Quick Consideration to Wage and Hour Measure

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 25.—Chairman Connery (D. Mass.) of the house labor committee, arranging for quick consideration of the administration wage and hour bill, expressed a preference today for setting the maximum work week at 30 hours.

Both Chairman Black of the senate labor committee and I are for a 30-hour week," he said. "If necessary, though, I would go as high as 40 hours."

Minimum wage and maximum hour figures were left blank in the bills which the two chairmen introduced yesterday after President Roosevelt recommended enactment of "labor conditions that 'meet rudimentary standards of decency.'"

Connery said he would insist on at least a $16 minimum weekly wage for employees engaged in interstate commerce or producing goods for interstate shipment.

Black said, however, he had no definite agreement with the representative on wage and hour figures. He added there might be many changes in the measure, but Connery predicted congress would approve the bill "just about as it is."

Senate hearings may begin this week. Connery predicted a report on the bill in three weeks.

DAMASCUS, May 25.—Members of Latin classes of the High school enjoyed a novel Roman banquet recently at the High school, with all pupils dressed in Roman garb. Members of Latin I class acted as "slaves" for the occasion.

Candles were used to provide light and knives and forks were banned as eating equipment. Songs, sung in Latin, were "America" by Olive Spencer, and Jean Redman, and "Come, All Ye Faithful," by Wilda Santer and Louise Mott. A juggling act was staged by Phil Stevens.

Janet Sangree and David Long were adjudged the most appropriately dressed. In roman language the menu announced delicacies such as olivae (olives), panis (bread), lactuca capitata (head lettuce), panis (bread), aper umber (meat).

Seven Marble Champs Ready For City Finals Thursday

Crack School Mibs Marksmen Will Knuckle Down At Reilly Stadium

On the hard-packed surface of a section of Reilly stadium's quarter-mile running track, crack mib shooters will knuckle down Thursday afternoon to play for the city championship in the grand finals of The Salem News marble tournament.

Last week, finals were completed in the seven schools under the direction of J. M. (Joe) Kelley, manager of the Memorial building, who is in charge of tournament play.

Herded together at The News office last Friday for picture-taking ceremonies, the seven champions, with typical boyish anxiety, professed they'd like to get the finals over as soon as possible.

Thus it was that Thursday was set as the important day with 4 p. m. as the starting time for the championship matches.

Use of Reilly stadium was granted by E. S. Kerr, superintendent of public schools. Another voice of approval was added by Track Coach Frederick E. Cope, saying that his track practice would not interfere with the doings.

To the seven champions—Tommy Leslie of Reilly school, John Hart of Fourth street, Bob Pasco of Columbia, George Drakulich of Prospect, Felix Antonio of St. Paul's, Wilmer Stanley of McKinley, and Frederick Stamp of Junior High—Thursday's going to be about the biggest day in their marble careers.

The chance for boyish fame as well as the opportunity to play in Canton for an 11-day vacation on the Atlantic sea coast is uppermost today in their marble-conscious minds.

Additional promises of gifts from friends and family provide additional impetus to their hopes of winning the city championship. A new bicycle awaits one youth if he makes the grade. Numerous family prizes have been promised others if they win.

But take all the prizes away, and you've still got seven real American boys who would just as soon play marbles as eat, and who think that being the best marble shooter in Salem is about as much of an award as any boy could want.

The News, in presenting its first city marble championship tournament, proudly invites you to watch its seven champions, real boys and real sportsmen, battle it out at Reilly stadium Thursday afternoon.

COUNTY RELIEF FUND BALANCE CAN'T BE SPENT

Attorney General Rules
On Query of Prosecutor
Stouffer

FROM BOND SALE

May Be Used Only for Retirement of Bonds, State Says

LISBON, May 25.—Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, in an eight-page opinion to Prosecutor Karl Stouffer today, ruled that the unexpended balance in the county relief fund, totalling $39,045.44 cannot be used for any purpose other than to retire bonds.

The prosecutor had asked for the ruling after county commissioners had requested Auditor John H. Irwin to pay delinquent relief bills, amounting to $17,000. The auditor was instructed by Prosecutor Stouffer that payment of the bills would be illegal.

The county's outstanding relief bonds, incidentally, total more than $200,000, it was disclosed.

If the commissioners can prove what relief bills were contracted before April 15, when the state relief act expired, payment of these bills may be authorized, the prosecutor indicated. The debts incurred after April 15 cannot be paid out of the relief fund.

CITY REGISTERS RELIEF CLIENTS

Every Effort Being Made To Keep Chiselers Off Rolls

Registration of the city's relief clients started at city hall this morning to continue throughout the day.

Following registration with Mrs. Robert Davis, temporary clerk, the relief applicants were sworn to an affidavit by Mayor George R. Harroff. The persons, by signing the affidavit, declared themselves worthy of receiving relief.

This means of registration was taken by city council as a means of eliminating the possibilities of persons securing relief when not eligible to receive it.

Council is expected to hold a special meeting at city hall Wednesday evening to map out a permanent program for the city relief administration, a unit which will probably be composed of the four ward councilmen.

Dust Is Handicap At Centennial Park

Page Mr. Roosevelt! Where's the DEA? There's PWA, PHA, AAA, FERA, and the rest of the alphabet, but what about the DEA, meaning dust, eradicating administration?

That's what residents around Centennial park, baseball players and other users of the city's summer recreational center would like to know.

Although the park only recently opened its season, many people are already staying away from it because of the excessive amount of dust caused by cars driving over the unrolled roads. Numerous complaints have been heard on this situation and attendance at city league softball games has dropped off considerably.

Lisbon Man Awaits Hospital Release

LISBON, May 25.—Indications point toward a release of George Nick, former Lisbon man, from the state hospital at Lima, it was revealed today by Assistant Attorney General Fred V. Cuff in a letter to Prosecutor Karl Stouffer here today.

Nick's release on a habeas corpus proceeding, brought about by Nick's relatives, will result in his being returned here to face a first degree murder trial in the killing Dec. 1, 1929, of Chris Bazaras, also of Lisbon.

Nick was committed to the state hospital Feb. 26, 1930, following his arrest on a first degree murder charge. Nick is alleged to have shot Bazaras because he thought Bazaras was paying attentions to his wife.

Heavy Voting Marks Early Hours of NLRB Election

CRICIBLE STEEL SIGNS CONTRACT

East Liverpool and Alliance Plants Among Those Affected

(By Associated Press)
YOUNGSTOWN, May 25.—Heavy voting marked the first two hours of the election being conducted today by the National Labor Relations Board among the 2,500 workers of the Sharon Steel corporation in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys. If the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee wins the election, it will get exclusive bargaining rights for Sharon Steel employees under the agreement in which the company consented to the election.

Play day grins helped to keep the voters in good humor as they stood in line at the polling places at the Lowellville, O., and Sharon, Pa., plants of the company. Pay day also helped to get the vote out early, and it was estimated that about half of the 2,500 voters would be in during the first four hours of the election.

The only untoward incident was a charge by Clarence Irwin, SWOC organizer at Sharon, that the company had violated the agreement and the Wagner Labor Act by circulating marked ballots against the SWOC in its plant yesterday.

Garrat A. Connors, vice president of Sharon Steel in charge of labor relations, said the company knew absolutely nothing about the circulation of the ballots, and if they had been distributed in the plant, it "probably was the work of some overzealous foreman."

The polls will remain open from 6 a. m. today until 1 a. m. Wednesday.

"Everything is running smoothly, there's no trouble," Ralph A. Lind, regional director of the labor relations board, said at Sharon.

"There has been some campaigning," he added, "but this election is just like a tea party."

The climax of an organizational campaign among Sharon workers—conducted through sound trucks, rallies and hand bills prior to consent for the election—found the huge plants of the Republic Steel Corp. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., all situated in the background.

STILL AT IT

One hundred and fifty years ago today, enough delegates finally turned up to let the constitutional convention of 1787 get under way. It had been summoned to assemble May 14, but stubbornness, indifference and bad roads caused a delay of 11 days.

The weather was hot, and the files were bad. Some of the new states were opposed to tinkering with the Articles of Confederation and refused to send delegates. Others sent delegates who came with the single idea of knocking every proposal in the head as soon as it was born.

They bickered and quarreled for endless weeks. Many delegates grew disgusted and wouldn't attend sessions. Some of the new Constitution's most important sections were adopted by less than a majority of the 12 states represented. At no time were all 12 states represented in the convention at the same time. Out of it all came the most remarkable charter of government the world ever has produced.

The founding fathers were considerably less than heroes and saints during that sizzling summer and convention. Without old Dr. Benjamin Franklin, who was a philosopher as well as a politician, they would have been at each other's throats even more often than they were.

On the far side of the Atlantic, Great Britain watched the apparently futile struggle of the new nation to get its house in order and thought it might be taking charge of its colonists again before long. Certainly, the first signs of political life in America were anything but auspicious. Apparently, though, that first climactic struggle with the Constitution was merely to foreshadow the succeeding century and a half of pulling and hauling over the document forged in Philadelphia in 1787. It seems to be the American way of handling the difficult problem of constitutional government.

RISE AND FALL

One day last week, discouraged by the strike of a crew of freight handlers, the last interurban line entering Cleveland pulled the switch and gave up the ghost. The strike, apparently, merely shortened the dying spasm.

Toledo, western terminus of the line, reports that only three of 11 interurban lines which made it Ohio's most bustling interurban center still continue in operation. Trucks and buses are winning the contest.

The rise and fall of the interurban lines took place in the span of half a century. They performed well the job they were expected to do. Were it not for internal combustion engines and good roads, they still would be invaluable.

Squeezed between railroads, designed to handle long haul business, and trucks, which apparently can handle anything, the interurbans quickly lost their vitality. The time is all but here when automobiles will be unable to say, as their fathers still can when loafing along behind a freight truck on the highway, "I can remember when they used to run those things on tracks."

WIDE AWAKE

What might be called the wide awake impulse in American politics has saved New York City from a lot of potential trouble.

A bill passed by the state legislature giving the city's commissioner of licenses power of a censor over the theater has been vetoed by Gov. Lehman. A speedily organized protest against the bill by producers, playwrights and actors brought its possible bad effects sharply into focus.

The bill was the result of a high-minded crusade against immorality in burlesque theaters. It had powerful support. For a time, the fact that existing laws empowered civil authorities to proceed against obscenity through arrests and prosecutions was forgotten.

It seemed easier to set up a censor, to take a shortcut which would deny the theater the right of appeal from decision unfavorable to it. In the name of goodness, it was proposed to enact a bad law.

This is a common and frequent tendency in legislating. Every time it is resisted, faith in the ability of Americans to govern themselves wisely under a constitution gains strength.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, May 26

According to the lunar transits on this day, there may be need for vigilance and alertness to matters of an intriguing or subtle nature because elements of secrecy, stratagem or craft dominate the affairs. Be careful with all schemes, undercover propositions and get-rich-quick activities.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which secrecy, subtlety and a degree of chaos or irregularity may menace the affairs. This element of intrigue, hypocrisy, collusion and duplicity may be most successfully vanquished by alertness to schemes, gambles or alluring propositions and projects.

A child born on this day may have an impractical, visionary and intriguing nature, and it may be disposed to be carried away by sentimental or emotional urges to the detriment of its personal and business welfare. It should be given vigilant youthful direction in this respect.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 25—Along any of those tumble and wretched tenement streets that come to dead ends is always a tacky candy store or soft drink stand that is the clearing house of gossip. A music box is toothed to some last year's air or a radio is in constant jangle.

Every doorway and window frames a silent, stony-faced figure making amends for obscurity in thought. In the glow of the brass evening sky the children play half-heartedly their made-up games. No sections of New York appear so placid, yet underneath are so tense.

What impresses the stranger is the absence of talk. As though words were futile. Now and then some patriarch will mumble something in his beard to nobody in particular and return to his meditation. If you speak they will nod gravely, but rarely with a smile.

Oddly, sociologists find little social unrest among such submerged. They are untouched by class jealousies. They have arrived appropriately enough at life's dead end. Eddied hopelessly to the last stop in the social scale; nothing much matters.

And speaking of silence, there is always a hush, a cud chewing indolence, about the mariners who make their headquarters at the Seamen's Institute on South street. Sailors are quiet at sea but particularly inarticulate on land. I have seen them standing in groups at the curb puffing pipes and never saying a word. At the lunch stands in the neighborhood the counter men say seamen may come in together but it is rare they exchange conversation. They seem gravid with memories and uninterested in things to come.

Gamblers are notoriously reputed as tight lipped. Arnold Rothstein was sitting for hours in a corner, back to wall, with his guard in restaurants and expressing himself with clipped monosyllables at long intervals. But he was an exception. Most of them around town who make gaming a profession are more often garrulous and loud-mouthed. Historians say the most gentlemanly and mild-voiced gambler the metropolis ever knew was Richard Canfield. He not only was a silent man but would not permit boister in his gambling salons. He honestly believed games of chance were respectable diversions and tried in every way to make them so. Whistler was his friend.

There is a Park avenue doorman who used to be a croupier at Canfield's. He tells me it was not unusual for a big winner to toss him $1,000 at the end of a night's play. At the time the raider's axe ended the Canfield establishment he had saved $75,000 in nine years. He knew the hazards of gambling, yet he wanted to make $150,000, return to his native Ireland and become a member of the landed gentry. He lost it in Wall Street in two weeks.

It is ever interesting to know what figure a man considers sufficient for retirement. At Henry Sell's a young man of 30 said he would quit tomorrow if he had $200,000 invested safely at 4 percent, thus bringing an annual income of $8,000. A man past 50 thought a half million well secured was ample and would permit the care-free life he desired. A gentleman of 61 did not believe anyone could make a half million and quit. By that time, he argued, money making was in the blood and nothing short of a million would be the goal. It was his experience that men did not care so much about the million as to achieve the rating of millionaire. And he was probably right.

When I was a gar-mouthed jasper in a small town the richest citizen was a banker with neatly clipped side-burns who lived in the finest home and sent his children to expensive colleges. Yet I have been told his entire estate was between $50,000 and $75,000. But those were the days when a 30-cent steak—with a hunk of liver for the cat tossed in—was the butcher's highest-priced cut. And the hired girl for $2 a week did the week's washing along with the cooking, housecleaning, etc. Indeed the horse and buggy days of the modern jear.

Followers of F. P. A. are hoping he resumes his column somewhere, after abandoning one he long conducted following a salary dispute. He is the last of the paragraph commentators who followed the B. L. T. formula of depending chiefly on contributors for the brightest mots. Many of his "contribs" got their first taste of fame through his selections of their banter. Such as Dorothy Parker, Deems Taylor, Marc Connelly, Russell Crouse and George S. Kaufman.

From a mystery novel: "She said the thing fell at her feet suddenly on the dark street, something that appeared robed in black with a snow white top knot."

Reads like a Supreme Court justice being dropped.

INFLAMMATION

Nothing is more annoying than to have a spot of inflammation in the lining of the mouth. I have in mind that affliction commonly known as a "canker sore." Sometimes its effects are so severe as to drive the sufferer to bed.

In former years this disturbance always was attributed to an "upset stomach." Today, as a result of our increased knowledge of "allergy," it is believed it may be due to a peculiar sensitivity to some particular food. Of course, not every case of canker sore can be definitely traced to an allergic reaction.

It may result from the absence of certain vitamins from the diet. When there is a lack of foods mucous membranes of the mouth, rich in vitamin C, the gums and mucous membranes of the mouth become inflamed and very susceptible to infections.

A victim of canker sore first notices an irritated spot, usually at the base of the teeth, under the tongue, or on the inner surface of the lip or cheek. There are first small blisters, which rupture and leave behind a whitish patch, which is really a painful ulcer. At times the trouble is confused with an irritation found in the mouth and caused by a rough or jagged tooth.

Keep Mouth Clean
Ulcers, inflamed sores and other abnormalities of the mouth should never be overlooked. Bear in mind that if they persist they may be the first sign of a serious disease. A chronic ulcer, sore or other inflammation of the mouth that does not respond to treatment should be suspected of being important. Sometimes it is cancer, tuberculosis or some other constitutional disease.

Keep the mouth clean. Cleanse with salt water or an antiseptic wash. The application of an astringent is beneficial to a canker sore. In a severe case a silver nitrate stick is applied by the doctor. He will avoid touching the normal mucous membrane with this chemical because to do so leads to additional inflammation.

While the canker sore is in its inflammatory stage, it is best to avoid fried and greasy foods in the diet. The food should be simple, nutritious and easily digested. If in doubt as to what the trouble really is, consult with your doctor.

Answers to Health Queries
Mrs. J. A. M. Q.—What do you advise for primary anemia? I have no appetite.

A.—You should remain under the care of your doctor and follow a definite course of treatment and diet. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. H. P. Q.—Where could I obtain the series of articles on child health recently issued by the U. S. department of labor?

A.—Write to the U. S. department of labor, bureau of publications, children's division, Washington, D. C. The authorities will be glad to send you their booklet on child health.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

ROCKY FORD, Col. — While Father Patrick Conway was hearing confessions of his parishioners, a thief broke into his house and stole his radio, clock and three suits of clothes.

Snakin' Around

COLUMBIA, Tenn.—A mouse was snaking its way around the vestry room at St. John's Episcopal church today.

The mouse and a three-foot garden snake entered the room separately. The snake ate the mouse, and started back for his garden, but, with the mouse inside, was unable to leave by the way he had entered.

Bishop James M. Maxon saw the mouse's demise, said he would rather have the snake around than mice. The snake holds the fort, unharmed.

CHAPTER XXIV

Isobel raised her head, wearily. At the end of a tropic day her heavy mass of hair became fatigued. She would not sacrifice it to greater comfort because the Colonel had implored her not to do so. It was, he said, a part of her regal responsibility. A queen did not part with her crown because of its weight. Isobel had not protested because she liked to loosen her hair in negligee, and when swimming to see it swirl about her, like algae.

"If Uncle is in danger of arrest or disgrace or general ruin, my place is with him, Sandy. My love for him is precisely the same as though he were my father. It looks now as though he had felt driven to a desperate and rather childlike expedient to shake these leeches off. And it hasn't fooled them one little bit."

"Need that affect your love for me?" Sandy asked.

"Not a particle. But it does affect the perfect happiness I've felt in it. I can't bear to think that you may have been lured here by Uncle to take care of me in the event of something of this sort. It's crushing to my pride."

"Pride and love frequently clash," Sandy said. "The result of the struggle may be the acid test for love."

"Perhaps," Isobel agreed, "but it's not entirely pride. Uncle must be badly broken to do a thing like this. I'd have counted on his facing it out. His magnificence isn't merely pose, nor softening of the brain. That's where his deeper nature lives. And I can't believe that he has ever done anything really criminal."

"If so," Sandy said, "it would have been on a grand scale. Some sort of misguided gesture, probably political. Like Jameson's raid, or even Casemate. He doesn't fit in the picture of anything merely sordid."

"That's the worst of it," Isobel agreed. "For all we know he may be a black-listed Irish or other conspirator whose operations have involved bloodshed that might have been officially recorded as murder, all politics aside. Or piracy, or banditry, or something of the sort."

"And then again," Sandy suggested, "it may be all delusional insanity, an insistent idea of paranoia sort, and these bloodsuckers aware of it and fomenting it to their profit."

"That's a possibility," Isobel admitted, "but even then I should be more than ever bound to stick by him. You see, it's not merely a sense of duty with me, Sandy, or gratitude for years of kindness and indulgence. My love for Uncle is in my heart, not in my head. Just as a girl might adore a sweet and sometimes silly old darling of a father that idolized her."

"And so do I adore you, darling," Sandy said. "So there we are." Isobel reached for his hand and held it. "I know. Such loves don't clash. But I can't bear to have you all wound up in such a ghastly mess. We've got to wait until we get unwound again. Meantime you've got your business that's going to send all your time and thought."

"Not quite all," Sandy protested. "When that happens to a man he might as well be an adding machine. As Napoleon said: 'I'm here, stick!'"

Isobel smiled. "And as Julius Caesar said: 'I'm here, stick!'"

Sandy interrupted: "I'm here, stick!"

In, I looked it over and I grabbed it off."

"You did those things," Isobel admitted, "and in a truly imperial way. But Bony and Jule never let women jam their cogs. I want you to carry on your commercial conquest, Sandy, and not be hampered by me. You've no business idling here at this moment."

"I'm not precisely idling, and my show is in good hands. I saw to that. Those interests can wait. If I lose out to not tending my business, then you share the liabilities just as you may share the assets. I'm going to see the Colonel through."

Isobel leaned far forward in her chair, her face thrust out, her lips the land's end of a lovely continent that Sandy's jutting promontory contacted. It was one of those electric kisses that fly from the poles of bodies that are highly charged but physically remote, so that the full force of the exchange is concentrated in the points approached, as if to fuse them. Shy lovers used to enjoy this rare form of stabilizing their individual tensions before the technique of such exchange became more coalescent.

They drew back a little breathless. "That is one way to send me off about my business," Sandy said, "but for some reason it doesn't work."

Isobel laughed. "It surely is a little like ringing the engines ahead, then dropping anchor," she admitted. "I acted on impulse."

"That's the only action worth reacting to," Sandy said. "Just as emotion is the only good reason for any. To get back to the Colonel, I can't help feeling that this stuff of his has got some deeper motive than we know. Something up the royal sleeve beside the royal elbow."

"Whatever that may be it's kind," Isobel insisted. "Something has happened to him in the last two years. He has turned gentle. He wouldn't hurt a fly. That is literal, because I've seen him open a window to push out a cluster of fruit-wasps, rather than to crush them. I can't believe that he was ever a bad man."

"Perhaps formerly his convictions were not the same," Sandy suggested, "so that his actions corresponded to them. If he had ever believed in the doctrine of might, he would have followed it consistently. If he had thought it the strong man's part to help himself, he would have done that thing, regardless."

"Not to the hurt of others," Isobel objected.

"Yes, if consistent with his creed at that time."

Isobel shook her head. "A man's nature doesn't change to that degree."

"But it may," Sandy persisted.

"From ruthlessness to benevolence," Isobel shook her head.

"His ideas, beliefs can change," Sandy said, obstinately. "And a man's thoughts determine what he is. Perhaps the Colonel was a supreme egotist, because he believed that was the only rational thing to be. But perhaps all the time that he was acting such a part a heaven was at work in him. The ancient wisdom of the East, that he absorbed without realizing it. Then something may have happened to make him believe that he had been entirely wrong. And once believing that, he acted on his new conviction."

Isobel appeared to turn this in her mind. "You've scarcely had time to hear much about Uncle's past," she said, "so he must have told you something, himself. What was it?"

"No more than that practically all he cares about is yourself. And that the whole of his effort was now directed to safeguarding your future from unhappiness. You don't know what sacrifice he may be making to do that."

"Do you?"

"I know him well enough to be sure that whatever sacrifice seems necessary, he would make it. There would be no qualification at all. A man's thoughts may change completely, if his mind is big enough, and his actions correspond. 'A wise man changes his mind, a fool never.' But his nature remains the same."

She was silent for a moment, then said: "That is true. Uncle's nature is big. That's what makes me sick about this. And I simply can't go on about my own happiness until I know the truth."

"Too many lives have been spoiled," Sandy said, "by the assumption that one has got to wait for marriage to share the trials of the one you love."

"I'm no silly martyr, Sandy. That's not the point. It's merely that I can't bear the thought of plunging you into a mess that may take a lot of managing just when you are apt to need so much of your time and thought for your tremendous undertakings. I could not make you as happy as I mean to do."

"Better than making me darned unhappy," Sandy said.

"It would come to the same. Sane or insane, whether he is hounded through imaginary fears or real ones, I've got to stick to Uncle. He may prove a very engrossing care. What do you think these people really are, anyhow?"

"Oh, I don't know. A quartette of globe trotting grafters, probably. Ship and hotel swindlers, con sharps, gamblers, perhaps. Badgering and blackmailers. Perhaps in business hours Jarvis and Flavia play the roles of man servant and companion. Give caste to the other two."

He was sitting so that he could look through the open door to command a view of the stairway and at this moment caught sight of Vinckers coming down. Walking out to where they sat, he said casually:

"I've been waiting for Isobel to go up. I'd like to have a few words in private with you, Crewe."

"Not tonight," Sandy said.

"It's rather important, Crewe. May save a lot of trouble for everybody."

"It may save a lot of trouble for you, Vinckers, if you call this treasure hunt a bad set," Sandy said. "Don't forget that you're under British jurisdiction here. B. W. I. law is apt to be summary."

"I don't know what you're driving at," Vinckers said, "but a few words between us in private would help clear this situation."

"It's clear enough for me already," Sandy retorted. "I can prove an attempt at murder on you, now."

"That would take some stiff perjury," Vinckers said.

"Oh, no. It wasn't yet dark, and sailors' eyes are keen. You bungled."

"Well, when you hear what I have to say . . ."

"That will not be tonight," Sandy said, emphatically.

"If you are afraid to be alone with me, Crewe, you can assure yourself that I'm unarmed, then let Isobel walk to the other end of the terrace for a few moments. Call in some of your men, if you like."

"I'm not afraid of you, armed or unarmed, Vinckers. It's merely that I think you a blackmailing blackguard and I don't want any dealings with you at all. Is that plain?"

"More plain than politics, Crewe. You're apt to be mighty sorry for it."

"That's my affair. Now clear out before I lose my temper."

BAND OF GYPSIES LEAVES COUNTY

Decide to Break Camp After Sheriff Threat- ens Court Suit

COLUMBIANA, May 25.—A band of 50 gypsies broke camp Monday afternoon at the farm of L. M.
McIntyre on Route 7, between East
Fairfield and Middleton.

Sheriff Harry L. Gosney and Deputy Mike Duty, seeking some means of forcing the gypsies to move on, discovered the leaders of the band were guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and then threatened court action
unless the wanderers left the county.

The gypsies were paying McIntyre monthly rent at the rate of $2 a tent. Eighteen tents brought the farmer $36 a month.

There have been numerous chicken thefts in the county's rural areas recently and Gosney believed the gypsies might be responsible.

So, together with Sheriff Ralph Elser of Mahoning county, Gosney and Duty visited the gypsy camp
Saturday afternoon. Here they ran across a 14-year-old colored boy,
James Rowland, whom the gypsies had coaxed away from his home in Cincinnati, Gosney said, with the promise of candy, money and a new car.

It was then that the officers threatened the gypsy leaders with charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The lad said he wanted to return home. The Mahoning sheriff appeared before the gypsy leaders in behalf of a Youngstown hospital, where one of the gypsy women recently gave birth to a baby. The hospital attaches feared the woman would run off, leaving them with the baby and a hospital bill.

To add to all the troubles, a Meigs county constable appeared later and arrested Farmer McIntyre for removing mortgaged property.

NOBODY ENJOYS TAKING MEDICINE!

Yet most people at some time suffer from common constipation.
Why not correct this condition the natural way—by including a ready-to-eat cereal with your daily meals instead of taking weakening pills and drugs?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN adds the
"bulk" the average system needs.
In the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft, spongelike mass—which gently cleanses the intestines.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines and iron for the blood.
Just eat two tablespoonsful a day, as a cereal with milk or cream, or cooked into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Three times daily in severe cases.

ALL-BRAN is sold at all grocers.
Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Pauline Turns In Five-Inning No Hitter In Class B League

Trades Class Records 2nd Straight Win In Class A; News Gains 1st Victory

Bill Pauline of Emmanuel Lutherans First to Reach No-Hit Goal This Year; Tradesmen Blank Nobils; Newsies Down Lunchers

The Class B City Softball league stole the spotlight from its older brother, Class A, at Centennial park last evening as Bill Pauline of the championship bound Emmanuel Lutherans turned in a five-inning no-hit performance to pitch his mates to a 2 to 0 shutout of the Presbyterians.

Pauline, who played for a time in the Class A circuit with the old Elks team and then dropped down to Class B last year, is the first pitcher from either league to attain the no-hit goal this season. He pitched to only 16 batters during his five innings of mound work.

Aided by two Presbyterian errors, the Emmanuel's pushed out two hits to score their winning two runs in the first inning. They were blanked in the remaining frames.

Taking six hits from the offerings of Pitcher Fisher of the Columbian, the Trinity Lutherans scored twice in the second frame, twice in the third and once in the fourth to gain a 5 to 3 victory in the other Class B tilt. George Schmidt, pitching for the Trinity club, gave up but three hits to the Columbian, who scored twice in the third frame and once in the fourth.

In Class A last evening, the Trades Class recorded its second straight win to remain at the top in league standings by blanking Nobil Shoes, 5 to 0, and the Salem News came through with its first win in three games by trimming the American Lunch, 7 to 2.

Granted only three hits by Pitcher Jack King of Nobils, the Trades Class took advantage of four errors made by the Shoemen to score two times in both the first and second ninings and once in the fourth frame.

Bill Miller, pitching for the Tradesmen, also allowed but three hits, and registered his first pitching win of the season with good support from his mates, who played errorless ball.

Two of the Trades Class' three hits were made by Dick Coe, who also drove in three of his team's four runs.

The News went to town in the first and second innings, scoring all of its seven runs, in these frames, to stop the American Lunch in its first start of the season. The Lunches counted seven hits, as did the News, but could not find the needed batting punch in the clinches.

Glen Whinnery worked the full route on the mound for the News, turning in his best pitching job of the still young season, while Frank Theriault tossed 'em for the American Lunch.

Carl Schroeder led the News in batting with three hits out of three jaunts to the plate.

Mullins Foreman go after their third straight win in the feature game of the Class A program this evening meeting the recently formed Old Timers, who won their first start of the season last Friday against the Ohio Edison. Demings meets the Ohio Edison in the second game of this evening's Class A card.

Women Golfers Vie In Medal Tourney

GRANVILLE, May 25.—A 36-hole invitational medal play tournament attracted most of Ohio's top ranking women golfers today as a warm-up affair for the state championship event to be held at Scioto Country club in Columbus July 12 to 17.

Eighteen holes were scheduled for today and the other 18 tomorrow on Granville Inn course.

Mrs. George Hedges, president of the Ohio Women's Golf association said she expected at least 75 to enter the tournament, including Mrs. Burt Well of Cincinnati, who has won the state women's title the last three years.

Racing Drivers Forecast 113-Mile An Hour Record For Indianapolis Speedway Race On Memorial Day

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 25.—An average of 113 miles an hour will be necessary to win the 500-mile race at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this year, drivers and mechanics predicted today.

With a good break on weather, they anticipate the most favorable speed conditions in the 25-year history of the annual Memorial Day event. The race will be held May 31 this year.

The track has been smoothed, turned safer and there is no limit on the amount of gasoline used. Last year there was a limit of 37½ gallons for the 500 miles. Only restriction this year is that standard gasoline obtainable at any public filling station be used.

Present record for the 500 miles is 109.069 miles an hour, set by Louis Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal., last year when he became the only three-time winner of the race.

It represented an increase of three miles an hour over the old record despite the fuel limit and an accident which slowed down the race for about 35 miles.

"Wild Bill" Cummings, Indianapolis, winner of the 1934 race with an average of 104.865, won pole position with a new record of 124.445 miles an hour for the 25-mile qualifying run.

At the same time he qualified for pole position, Cummings set a new record of 125.139 miles an hour for a single lap of the two and one-half mile brick oval.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago, a former midwest car driver, averaged 128.570 miles an hour a few days later on an unofficial run in a new six-cylinder racer specially built for the Indianapolis race. Art Sparks, designer of the car, thinks it will average 130 for a single lap.

Gradually the speed of the race has increased since Fred Frame, Los Angeles, won with an average of 104.14 in 1932. Myers followed him in 1933 with an average of 104.16.

Then came Bill Cummings with his record of 104.86 and Kelly Pettit, Los Angeles, in 1935 with an average of 106.86. Meyer shot the record up to 109.06.

The slowest average ever to win the Indianapolis race was the 74.59 miles an hour made by Ray Harroun in the first race back in 1911.

All but one of the 10 money winners last year averaged better than 100 miles an hour. Zeke Meyer, 46, oldest driver on the track, took ninth place with 101.331 miles an hour. George Connor, San Bernardino, Cal., finished tenth with an average of 98.931.

Fifty-five cars were entered for the race this year, but only the fastest 33 in qualifying trials will be permitted to start.

To qualify a car must make 10 laps at an average of 110 miles an hour or better. Last year the qualifying limit was 100 miles an hour and the starting field was comprised wholly of cars which had exceeded 110.

In addition to Cummings and Snyder, this year's field includes several others who have proved themselves able to stand the terrific pace for the 500-mile grind.

Meyer is back looking for his fourth victory. He qualified at 119.619 miles an hour. Kelly Pettit also is back again.

Others include Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, who qualified at 122.751 miles an hour; Herb Ardinger, Glassport, Pa., who averaged 121.383; Billy Winn, Detroit; Ralph Hepburn, Los Angeles, driving the car in which Meyer won last year; Tony Guletta, Kansas City; Mauri Rose, Dayton, O.; Chet Gardner, Long Beach, Cal.; Babe Stapp, Dallas, Texas; Rex Mays, Glendale, Cal., twice holder of pole position; Floyd Roberts, Van Nuys, Cal.; and George Connor.

Dick Coffman Rescues 23rd Straight Victory For King Carl Hubbell; Pirates Lose

New York Yankees Regain Batting Eye To Move In to First Place In American League, As Athletics Lose to Browns; Giants Tie For Second

A king who still rules though his throne tottered dangerously, and a gang of marauders once again threatening to rip apart the American league, furnished baseball's biggest news today.

The king is Carl Hubbell. The marauders are the Yankees, walkaway champions in the junior circuit last season and now, with their team batting eye regained, back on top of the heap with a full-game advantage over the Philadelphia Athletics, who dropped an 8-6 verdict to the Browns.

Hubbell, credited with the Giants' 4-3 defeat of the National League leading Pirates yesterday, thereby added the twenty-third pearl to his unbroken string of league triumphs.

Meyer is back looking for his fourth victory. He qualified at 119.619 miles an hour. Kelly Pettit also is back again.

Others include Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, who qualified at 122.751 miles an hour; Herb Ardinger, Glassport, Pa., who averaged 121.383; Billy Winn, Detroit; Ralph Hepburn, Los Angeles, driving the car in which Meyer won last year; Tony Guletta, Kansas City; Mauri Rose, Dayton, O.; Chet Gardner, Long Beach, Cal.; Babe Stapp, Dallas, Texas; Rex Mays, Glendale, Cal., twice holder of pole position; Floyd Roberts, Van Nuys, Cal.; and George Connor.

Lazer holds victories over some of England's best fighters, including Ben Ford, Norman Baines and Jack Pettifer, and several leading American heavies, among them Tony Calento, Adolph Wister and Art Sykes. ## THEATER Attractions

"Marked Woman", which comes to the State tonight and Wednesday, marks Bette Davis' return to the screen after considerable absence, and is an exceptionally fine piece of movie art in direction, action and story. The sensational theme of the plot does not promise anything light or entertaining and the picture never once loses sight of the fact that it is exposing to the daylight something not pretty, something vicious and brutal.

Movie goers who like only froth and frivolity will not find "Marked Woman" much to their liking but those who like an emotional wallop once in a while will find that here is something they can put their teeth into.

Story of "Hostesses"
The story concerns five hostesses in a night club, Mary, played by Bette Davis; Florrie, Rosalind Marquise; Gabby, Lola Lane, Emmy Lou, Isabel Jewell; and Estelle, Mayo Melhot. Their place of business, passably respectable, is taken over by Johnny Vanning (Eduardo Cienfuegos) to be run as a spot where suckers can be separated from their money in a great many ways—and where the hostesses can earn twice as much as before, although they have to give back part of their Vanning's rule is that they work for him or they don't work at all. Mary is innocently involved in a murder, investigation of which brings all the girls into the lime-light, including Mary's younger sister, Jane Bryan, from whom Mary has been keeping the real truth about her work. Mary is sending the sister through college.

Humphrey Bogart is seen as the assistant district attorney who zealously undertakes to prosecute Vanning but is double-crossed by the defense lawyer, John Littel, and Mary. However, Mary turns against Vanning, at the risk of her life, when Betty, the younger sister, is killed while attending one of the racketeer's parties. Mary is brutally beaten and marked with a knife but goes on in her determination to see Vanning caught.

Tell Their Stories
Vanning arranges to have Emmy Lou, only witness to the killing of the sister, silenced but she escapes and goes to Graham with Mary.

The girls tell their stories in court and although Vanning is convicted on four counts, they face reprisal at the hands of one of his henchmen.

"The Prince and the Pauper", with Errol Flynn and the Mauch twins, concludes tonight at the State. A double feature at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday brings Joe E. Brown in "When's Your Birthday" in a return engagement with "The Great Hospital Mystery", featuring Jane Darwell, Sig Ruman, Sally Blane, Thomas Beck and Joan Davis.

"Racketeers in Exile" with George Brent, Evelyn Venable and Wynne Gibson and "Country Gentlemen", with Olsen and Johnson, will be seen at the Grand for the last times tonight.

Unanimous Verdict In Favor of Turkey

LISBON, May 25.—A unanimous verdict was returned Monday noon by a common pleas court jury in which not only Judge W. F. Lones concurred but other court house attaches as well.

The defendant, a turkey from the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stockton near Homeworth, was adjudged "Excellent". Both Mr. and Mrs. Stockton were members of a petit jury considering its work Monday. To commemorate the occasion they provided the turkey, with other members of the jury contributing the "trimmings".

Assignment Officer James Stevenson, Clerk of Courts Carl Stacey and Court Stenographer Alice Glenn were other guests. The dinner was served in the law library at the court house.

Hearing Is Resumed In Lisbon Man's Case

LISBON, May 25.—Hearing on habeas corpus proceedings seeking to free George Nick of Lisbon from the hospital for the criminal insane at Lima was resumed today in Allen county common pleas court.

Nick, committed to the institution in 1930, will be returned to this county on a first degree murder charge if the court grants the writ.

He was indicted seven years ago for the murder of Chris Bazaras, Lisbon, and sent to the institution following a sanity hearing.

Provisions in his commitment papers require his return to Columbiana county for trial in the event he is found sane.
